PROLOGUE

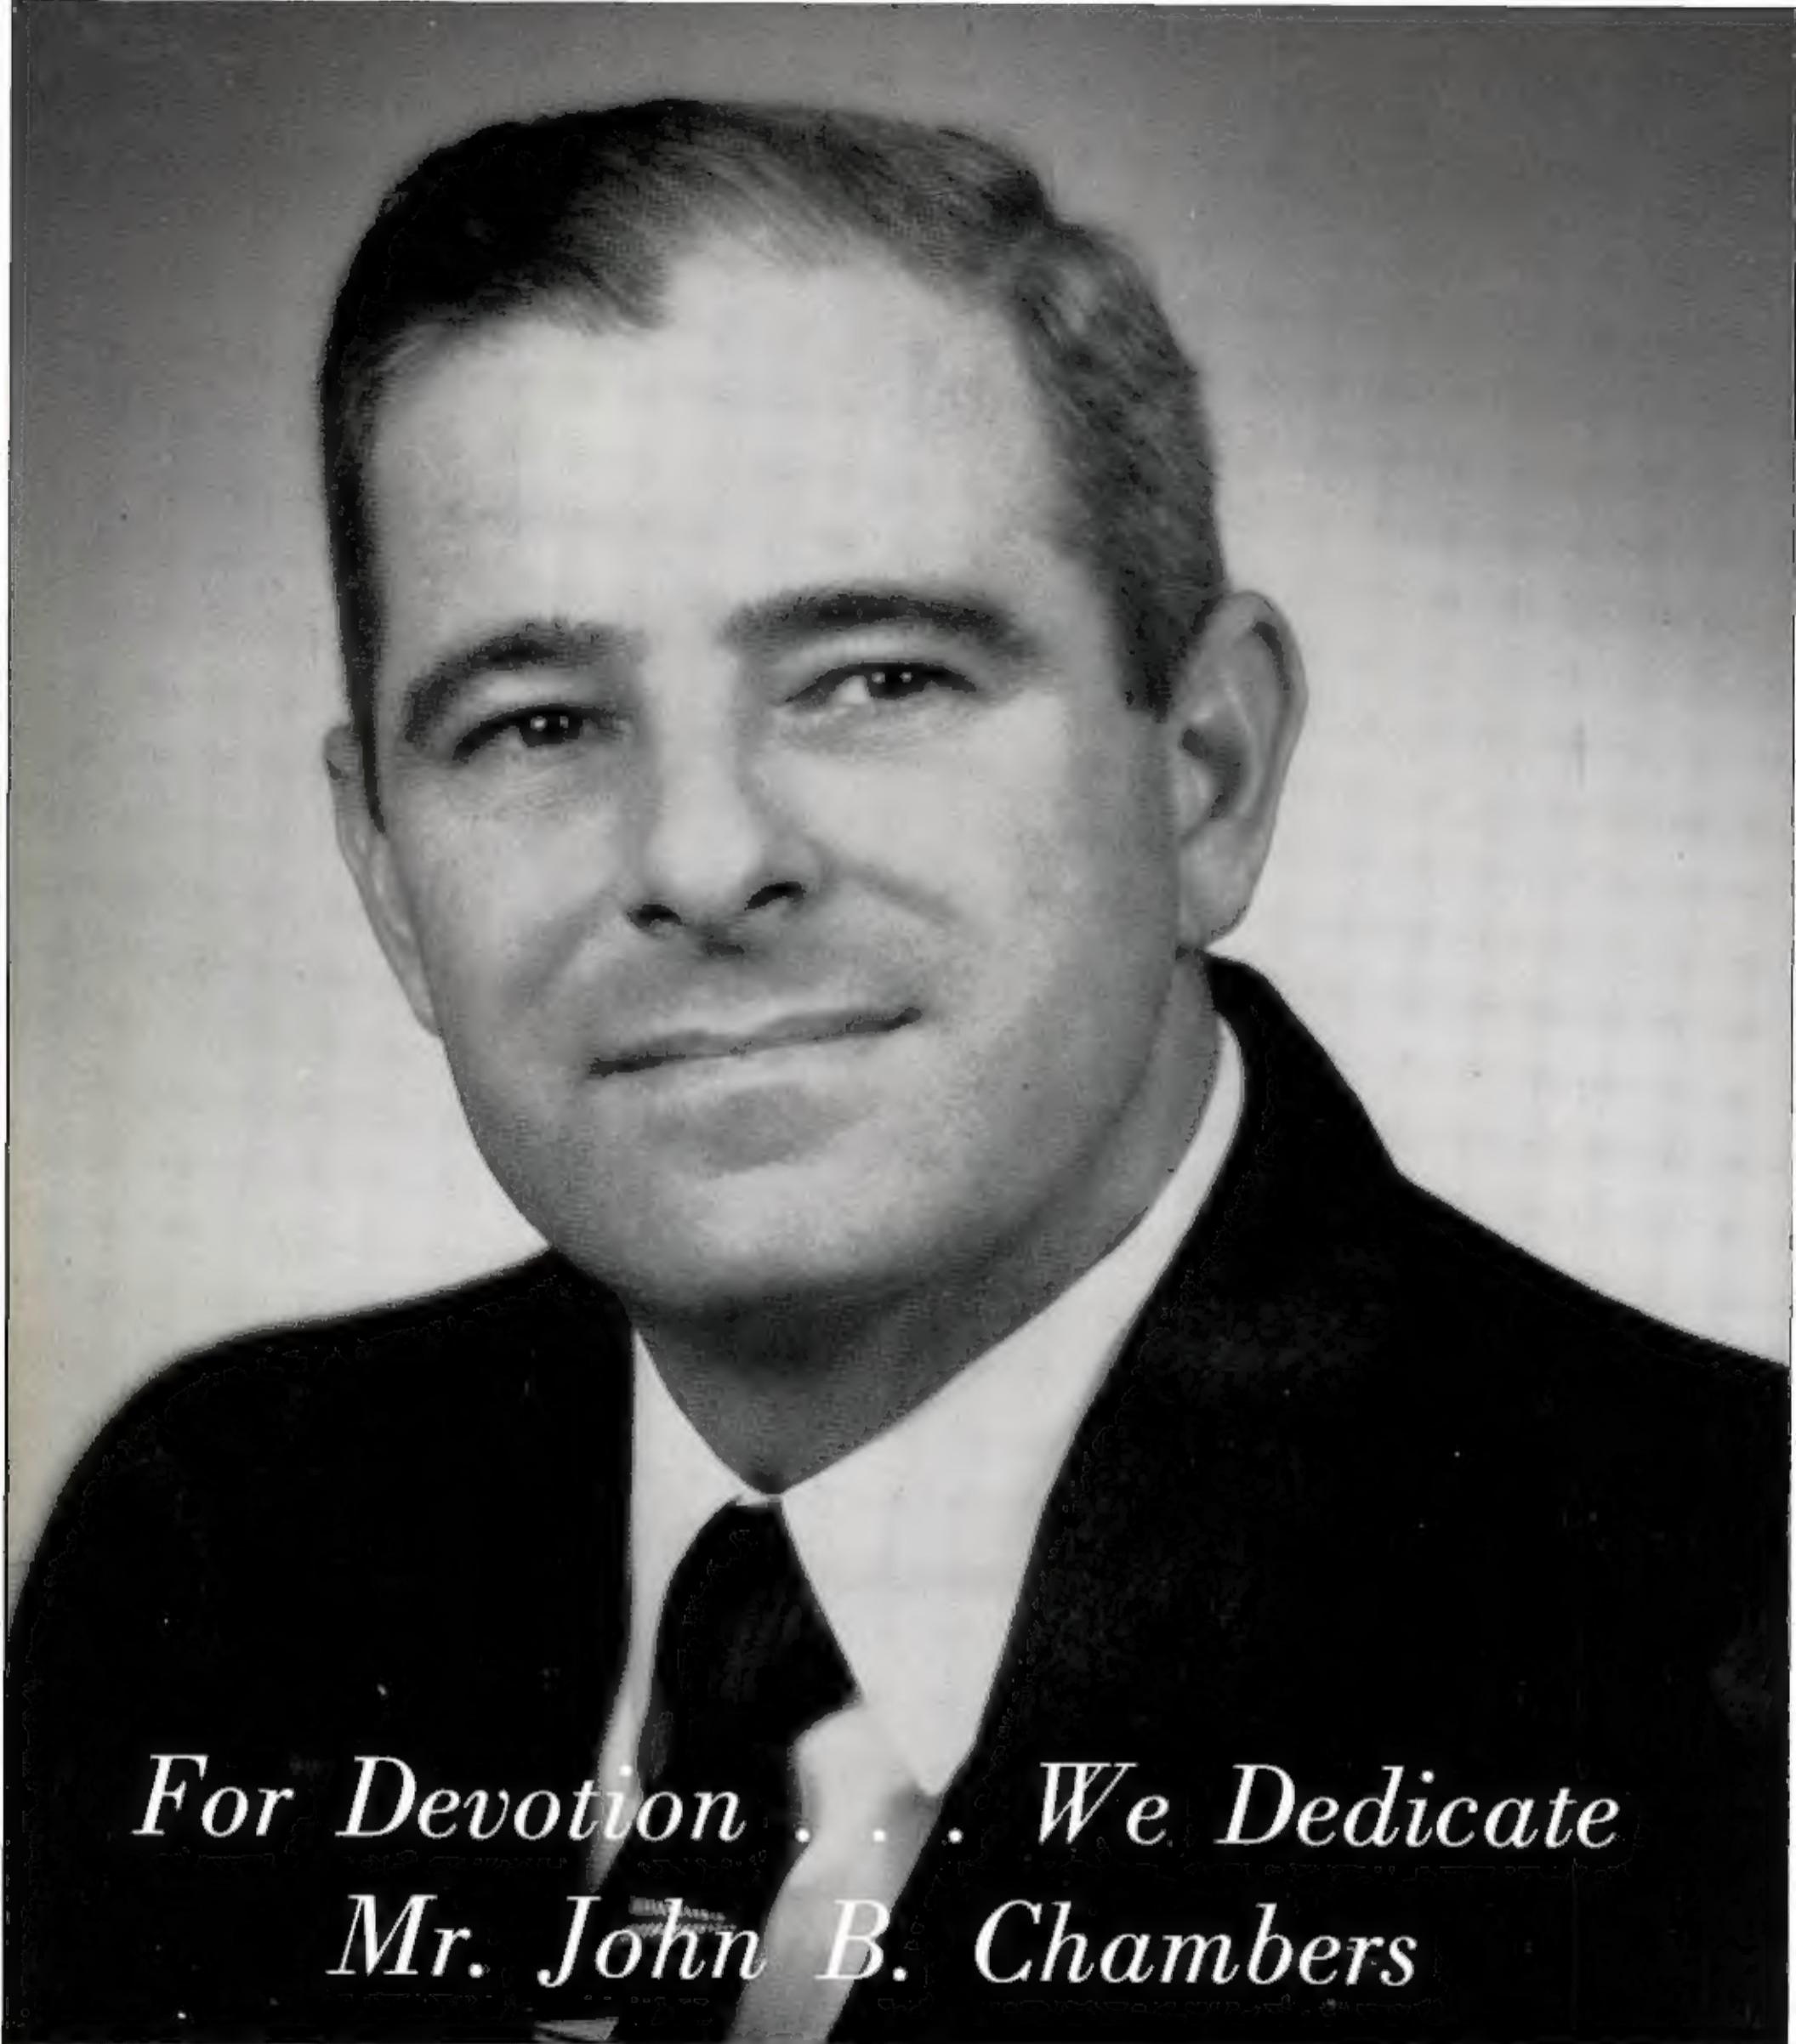

Lona Smelker
Editor

The music of the overture soars to its fullest heights proclaiming a dynamic play. All the actors backstage nervously await their cues. The directors stand by in anticipation of success. With the stage set and lights ready, the curtain slowly rises, opening upon a splendor of emotions, excitement, and moments of joy and sadness. This is the year 1964-65, our anticipated year that must and will be an unparalleled success.

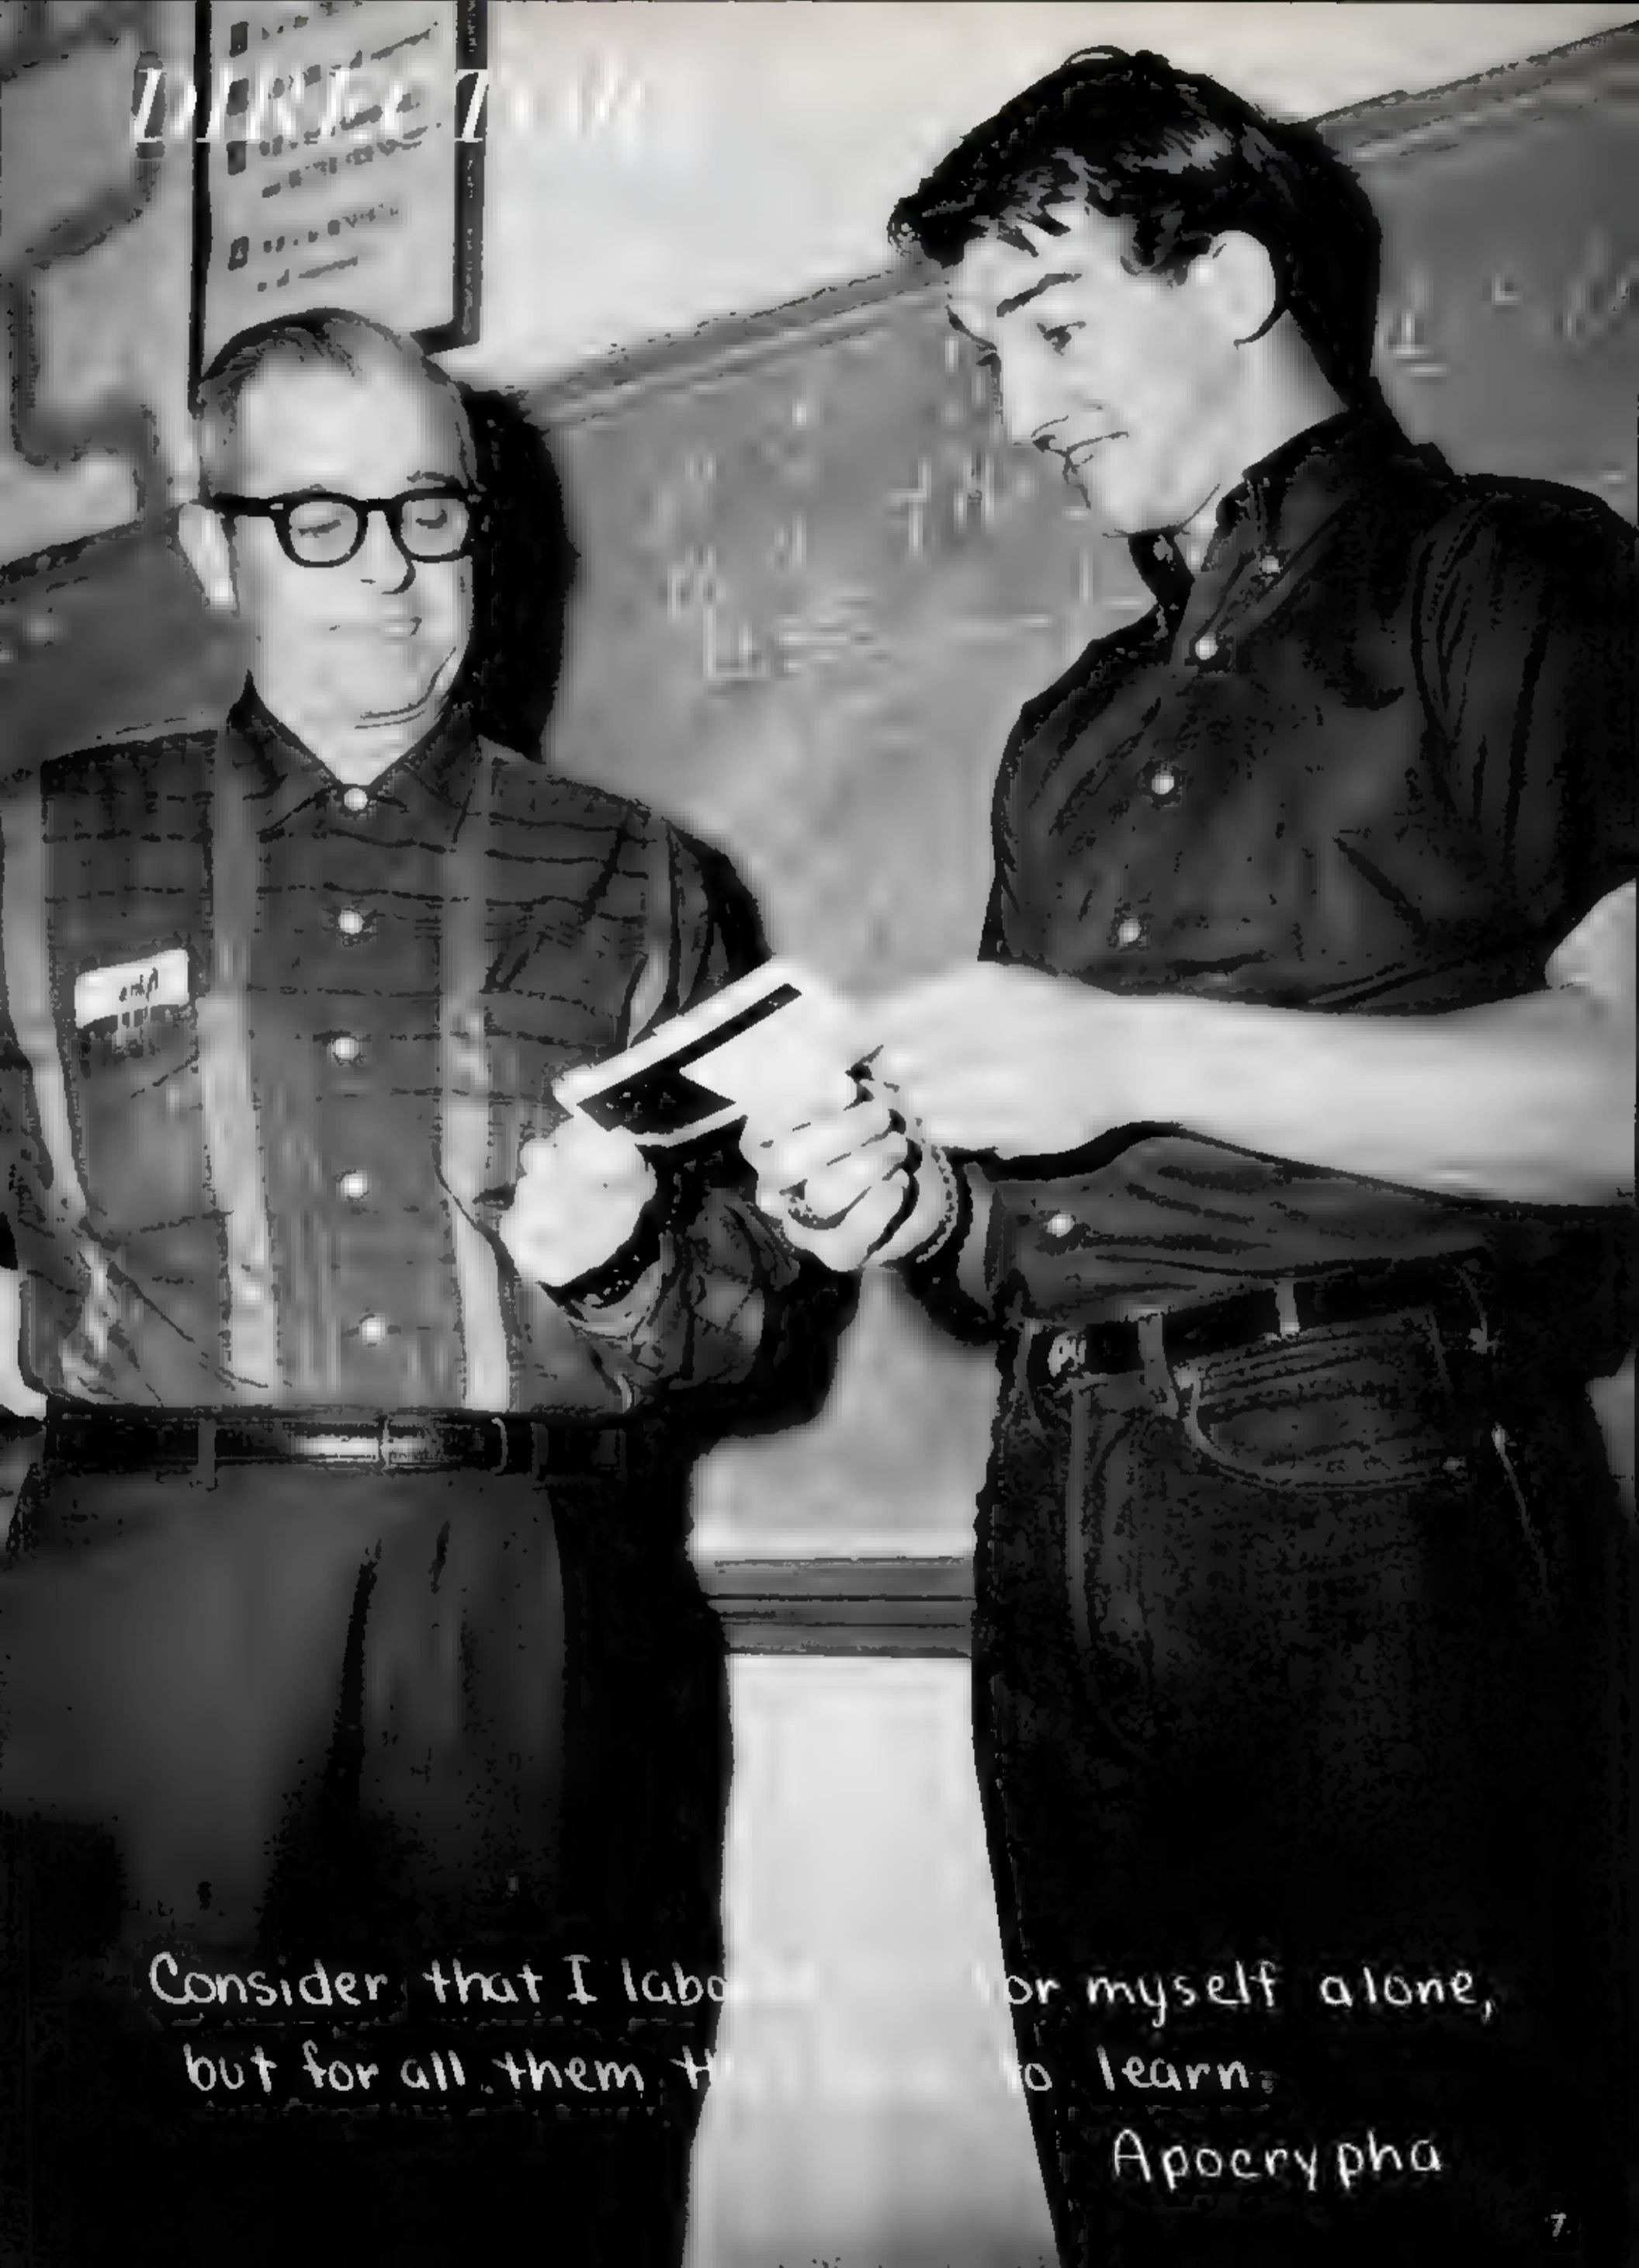

Our stars, the Seniors, with their lines and actions properly rehearsed, smoothly portray their long sought roles. The Junior co-stars will certainly be rewarded for their roles as best supporting actors. The understudies, the Sophomores, have gained much experience and will rise to greater heights in the coming years. All the lines and actions will be watched with great admiration by the Freshmen to prepare themselves for their future roles.

Dances, class parties, honors, holidays, exciting games, and of course diligent studying enhance our plot. With each scene our play becomes intensified with our fond memories of Terrell High School.

For Devotion . . . We Dedicate Mr. John B. Chambers

Mr. John B. Chambers will always be remembered by the classes and faculty of 1965 because of his ready sense of humor, his willingness to join in fun, and his active interest in the students and activities of Terrell High. In the six years Mr. Chambers has been a chemistry teacher, he has held the love and respect of students while maintaining good discipline. Mr. Chambers shows his respect and concern for students not only by sponsoring the Senior Class and Chemistry Club but also by his everyday dealings with them. With deep appreciation, we dedicate this 1965 TIGER to Mr. John B. Chambers.

SUPERINTENDENT

Mr. Grady Hester

Today's education offers our youth an ever-increasing wealth of knowledge and training to fit young people for living in this space age in which we find ourselves. It is my hope that each of you will take from Terrell High sufficient knowledge on which to base a high goal in a good life.

P R I N C I P A L

Mr. Dan O Douglass

If it is success that you want, you must make your own opportunities as you travel through life. The person who waits for the smile of good fortune will live to be jealous of his neighbors.

Once in a while we seem to come to the end

Day in the life of a Senior

A typical day in the life of a Senior is filled with many memorable events and they all add up to a year of wonderful things. The Junior-Senior Banquet and Prom, the Senior Play, Senior Trip, Senior Day, Rotary Club Banquet, parties and more parties, Baccalaureate . . . and the greatest day of all . . . Graduation, add a festive air to the last fleeting weeks of their last semester.

"Aw! Come on, Cooper! This is the last time we'll get to give you your birthday licks."

T. H. S. Senior girls take a walk around the campus.

After studying . . . diligently, Eddie finds plenty of time for sleeping.

"Is this a dagger which . . . I see . . . before . . . me . . . " . . . Zzzzzzzzzz.

1964-65—A year to remember

"Charlie Mac will never find you in here, Janet!"

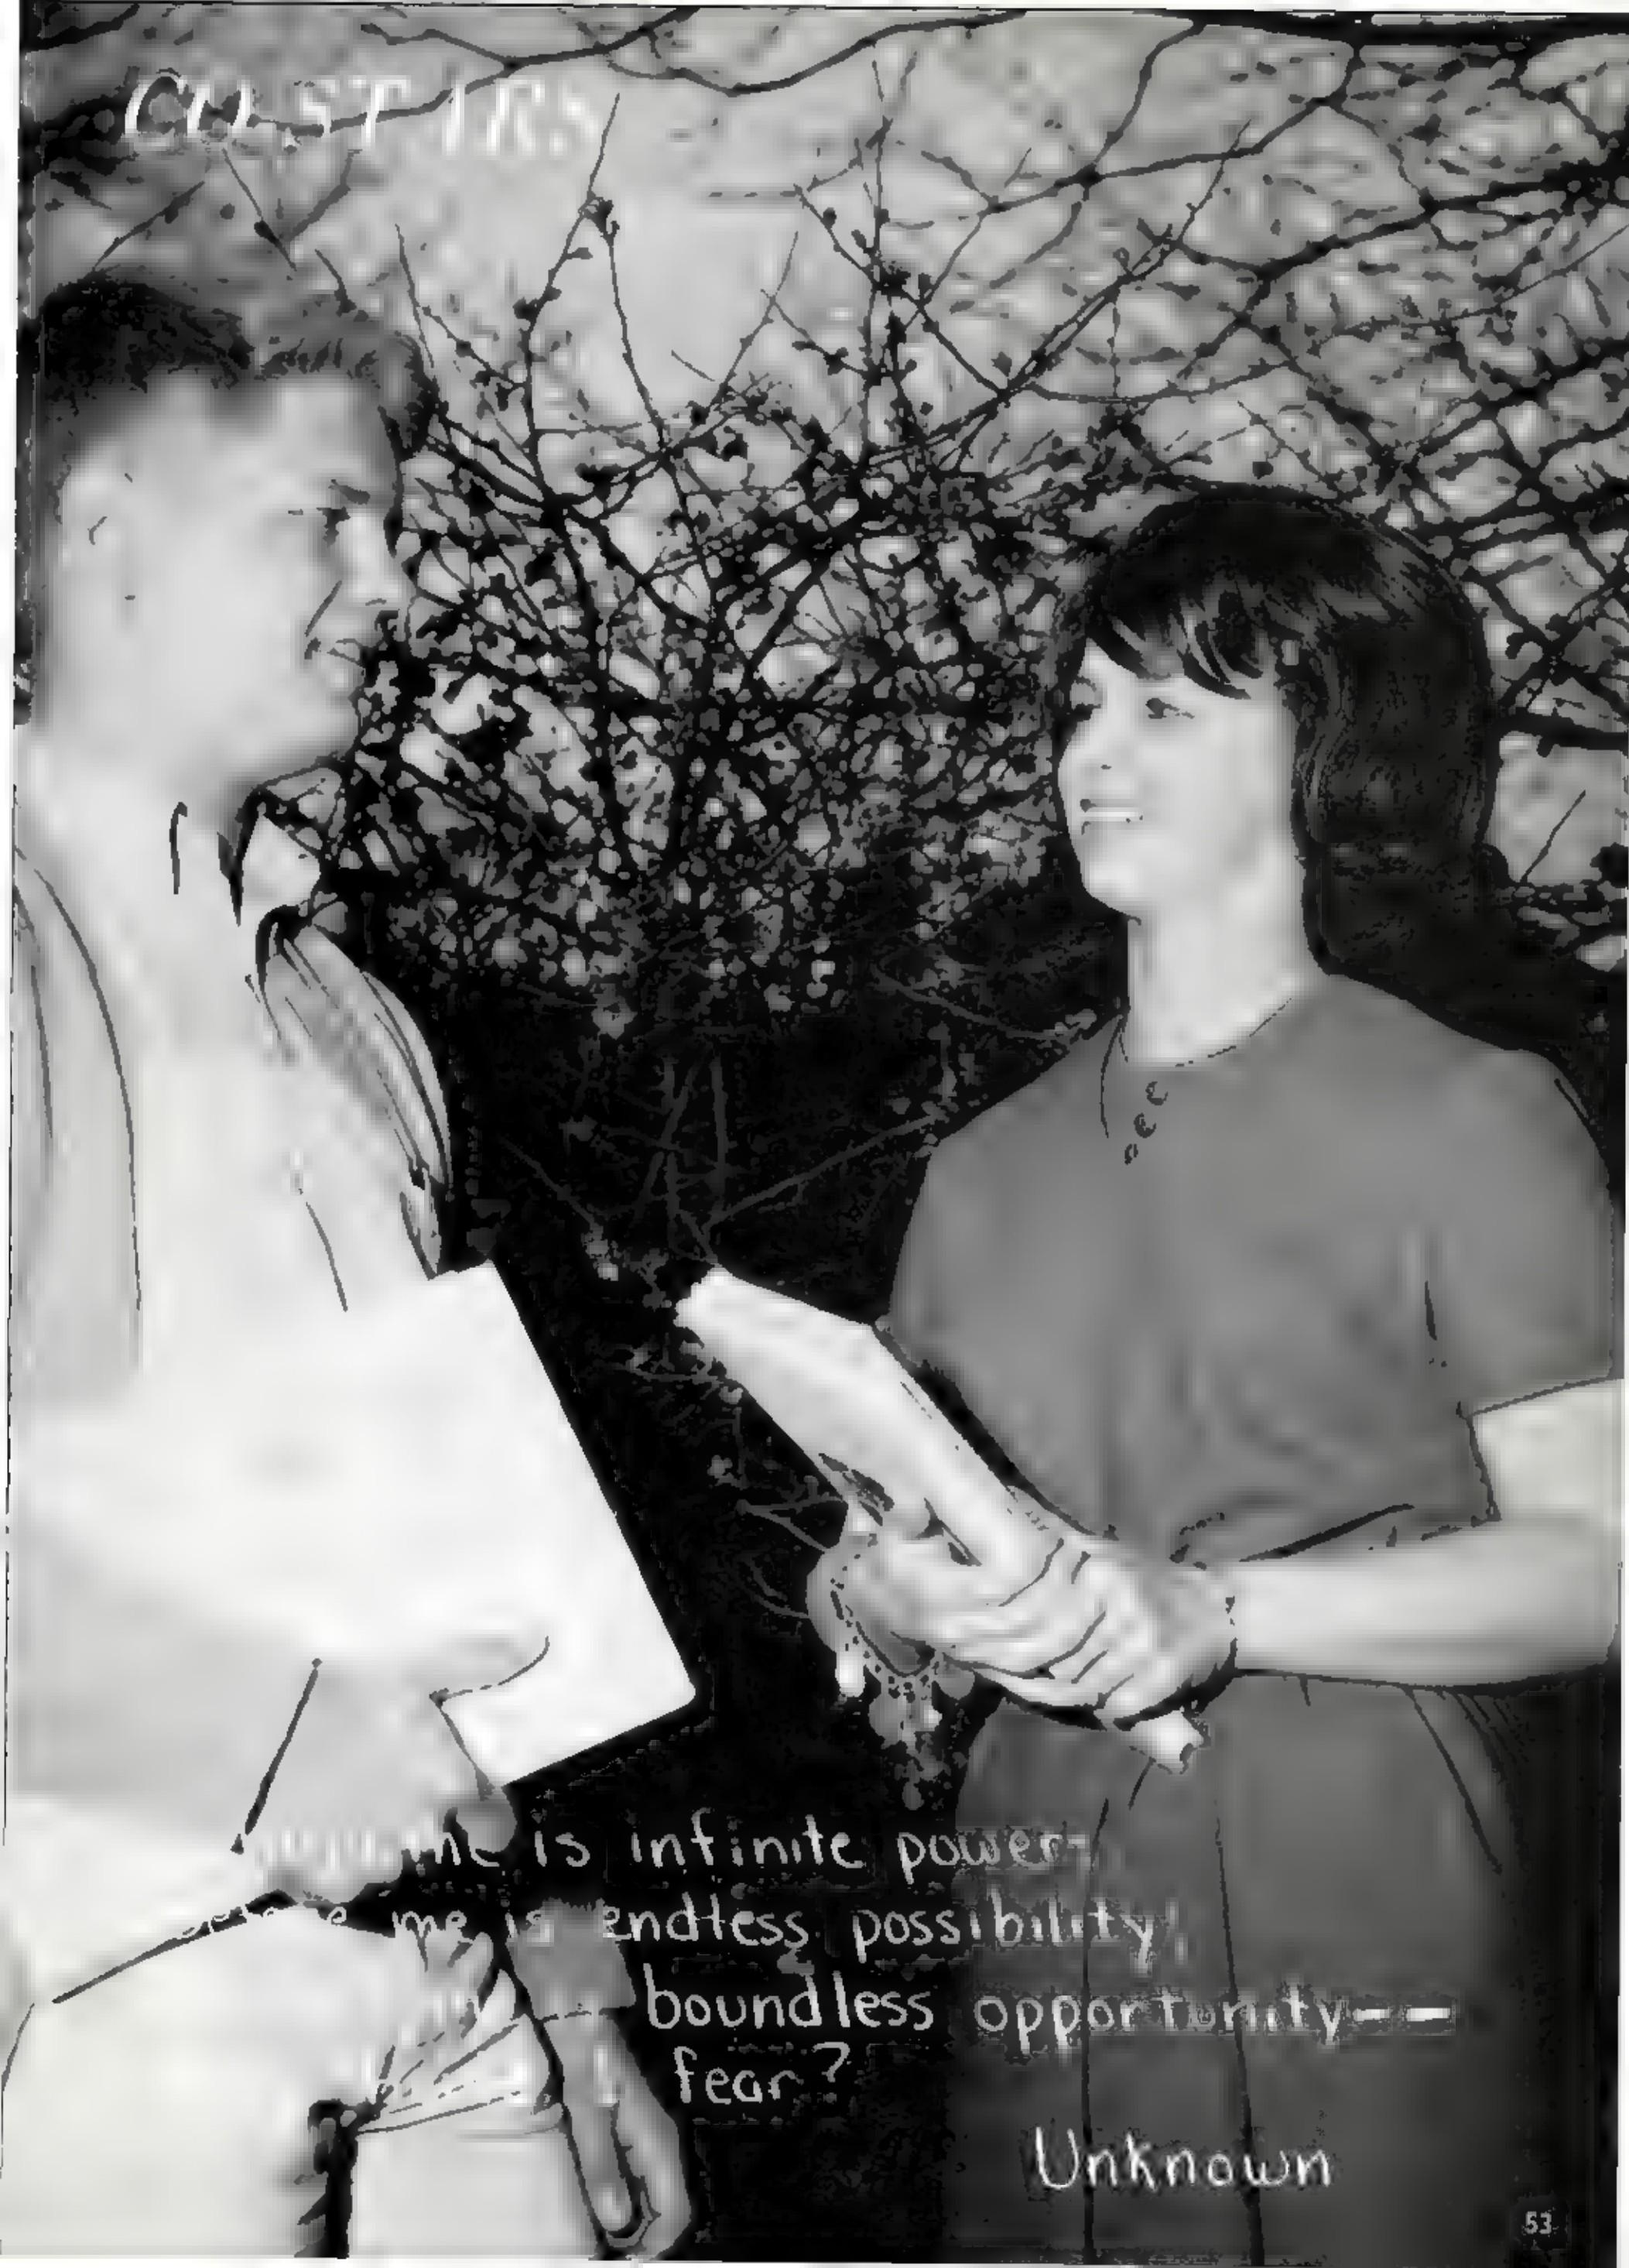

"It's my turn to answer the phone!"

Marjanne . . . the new cleaning wonder!

"Get ready everybody--Bernard's here."

...there is infinite power
...there is endless possibility
...there is boundless opportunity --
...but there is also fear?

The 1965 TIGER, distributed to 480 members of the student body, was the result of many hours spent by the Tiger staff. The staff working hard to meet each deadline felt it was worthwhile, however, after completing the four deadlines during the year.

In the early part of the year, the staff attended an annual seminar at the Kilgore Junior College to gain better understanding of the publications department. With the help of last year's members, Lea Ann Dudley, Carolyn Allen, Harlynn Thomas, and Pat Maykus, organization by editor Lona Smelker was set at a quick pace.

Cindy Allen and Pat Makyus go over some papers with Miss Cave.

Staff members Diane Weatherford, Linda Hindman, and Nancy Becker discuss plans for ads.

Each year a dedicated staff works to achieve the goal of making the yearbook one of the school's best, but the members must be directed by a leader. Miss Mary Cave directed the students to their well-earned goal.

At this time the Tiger Staff would like to give special recognition to Bernard's Studio for the excellent photography, and to Linda Murdock who is responsible for the artistic touches in our yearbook. Also, Nancy Becker is to be commended for the original cover design.

Going through sample books, Susan Stone and Vicki Parker choose the most attractive layouts.

Tigers start season

Athletic competition comprises an important part of modern high school education. The athletes who represent our school in football are the dedicated members of our student body who are willing to spend long hours training and practicing, perfecting their skills to fight for Terrell.

Just as important as these chosen few are the hundred who support them by attending the contests and cheering "our boys" to victories. Their spirit is the Twelfth Man on the Tiger team.

Emotions are drawn taut by the strain of a grueling game. As desire for victory intensifies, the atmosphere is heavy with the belligerent attitude of spectators and the unremitting efforts of the team.

As more than 3,000 fans looked on in the wind-blown Memorial Stadium, the Tiger Eleven scored an impressive 41-0 triumph over Greenville to open a new season successfully.

Size, desire mark versatility

After the triumphant opener the Tigers encountered strong opposition against Palestine, Lake Highlands, Sulphur Springs, and Jesuit. They continued on into District action with a winning desire and faced Athens, Duncanville, Ennis, Waxahachie, and Lancaster.

Before Jesuit came to Tiger Field they put a Tiger in their tank, but the darned thing nearly climbed back out as they edged the Tigers by a mere 12-6.

The Tigers took advantage of every gift offered them for a resounding 34-7 victory over the Waxahachie Indians. As the Terrell fans yelled in glee, Coach Vineyard's mighty eleven scored five touchdowns and attempted five extra points and successfully kicked four.

When 12 stalwarts, representing all seniors playing their last game, went out to be in on the toss of the coin it seemed it might be a great night. But, the Tigers were starting without four or five key men which weakened their defense as well as offense, and irony invaded the Tigers previous hopes.

Bonfire adds zes

Tiger spirit was dampened but not for long when the two-day preparations for the Homecoming bonfire went up in smoke two days early. The opposing Athens team were the suspected culprits.

The Tigers rallied, however, and after a full day's scavenger hunt, during school hours, a second bonfire was proclaimed the biggest and best yet.

Dionysius Cato

The eager-to-win Terrell Tigers wrote a glorious "first" to their 1964-65 basketball campaign when they beat Greenville 53 to 55. They entered district play with the best spirits any Tiger team had compiled yet, only to encounter a demoralizing slump. Nevertheless, the returning lettermen, new players, and determination merged and it resulted in a thrilling and exciting basketball season.

"We DUDE It" was presented on March 12-13, 1964 by the Junior Class as one of their activities to raise money for the Jr.-Sr. Banquet and Prom and Senior Trip. The three-act play was about an Eastern lady who bought a Dude Ranch in the West. This situation resulted in many humorous complications.

Remembering

the Past

Terrell High School has left its mark on each member of the senior class. Through classroom instruction, extracurricular activities and community activities, these students have acquired knowledge of their environment, an adult sense of responsibility and an awareness of the vital part they play in their country's future. The highlights of these four years are cherished memories for most seniors.

Classroom instruction, perhaps the greatest influence, has given them the skills and knowledge necessary for living in this unpredictable world. It has instilled in them an idea of the necessity for a life which is well balanced intellectually and socially.

Through extracurricular activities they have learned additional skills and developed qualities of leadership and co-operation. In sports Terrell has always been tops. Whether champions or not, team members and their schoolmates have demonstrated an enthusiasm for their school and shown qualities of good sportsmanship.

Terrell has seen the members of the Class of '65 grow into adults. It has helped prepare them to face the responsibilities of the future with intelligence, dignity and consideration for others.

EPILOGUE

As the curtain closes on a wonderful year, we must look ahead to the future. We have completed only one of the many parts in life that we must play. For all of us walking through these doors a new life will begin, and our school life will become golden moments of time just past. All of us will go our separate ways, each hoping to reach out and grasp the star that is waiting in our future.

Looking to Your Future...

Supplying you with dependable, low-cost electric power today is only a part of TP&L's obligation to its customers. Another essential part of this obligation is its planning and building ahead for your electrical needs tomorrow.

Two big generating units are now under construction, and will be ready to serve you in 1965 and 1966. When completed they will add $\frac{3}{4}$ million kilowatts to the Company's capability.

Even as these plants are going up, other plans are on the drawing boards extending to 1980.

It is only through such planning and building ahead that TP&L and other investor-owned electric utility companies are able to keep pace with the growing demands for electricity in homes, businesses and industries.

For example, the average TP&L residential customer used more than four times as much electricity in 1963 than he used in 1948.

In 1964, TP&L expects to spend more than $52 million on new construction. During the 1964-1970 period, construction expenditures by all investor-owned electric companies of the nation are expected to exceed $34 billion.

Past records and projected plans of TP&L and the nation's other investor-owned electric companies are your assurance of an adequate and economical supply of electricity in the future.

Which of us has no desire or having
